Indian cuisine reflects a 5000-year history of various groups and cultures interacting with the subcontinent, leading to diversity of flavors and regional cuisines found in modern-day India. The most important and frequently used spices and flavorings in Indian cuisine are whole or powdered chili pepper, black mustard seed, cardamom, cumin, turmeric, ginger, coriander, and garlic.

Our unique and most popular spice mix is garam masala, a powder that typically includes five or more dried spices, especially cardamom, cinnamon, and clove. Each culinary region in India has a distinctive garam masala blend, the chefs at Mehfil Indian Restaurant use the most classic and traditional combination handed down by generations to deliver the most Authentic north Indian flavors available in the area.
